was living with her father, a judge, were beginning to miss culture, the museums, concerts, libraries and educational stimuli. Because of their desire to remain cultured, they organized a study club and invited six other women to join. Candidates had to have a sincere interest in study and selfimprovement, live within a walking distance of the other members and be a Christian woman of good character.

The original by-laws of the club state, "The purpose of the Tuesday Afternoon Club is cultural study and cooperation with works for the social improvement of the community."

The club was to meet the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month in the club members' homes. Membership would be limited to 20 women. The meetings would be in the afternoons. Later, the name was changed simply to Tuesday Club and the meetings were changed to evenings.

One of the first tasks of the club was to start a library, a much needed resource for women who needed to study. An empty brick building just off of Main Street was obtained for the building, and members, husbands and children helped for the old books that were available.

With more current books needed, fund raising events began to crop up. The first annual tea netted $25. The ladies were still hard at work in 1920. When they weren't studying music, art, drama, world affairs and politics, they were raising money for the library.

By 1930, the library was on firm ground, so the club's attention turned to the town that had become "rundown looking" after the Depression. A citywide spruce-up gave new vitality to not only the town but its residents.

During the war years, the club's attention was turned to helping with the war. Members sponsored Girl Scouts, bought a war bond and raised money for the Red Cross. With thankful hearts after the war, the ladies chose the Bible as their course of study.

The 1950's saw a need for a hot lunch program at school. The club submitted the project of blood types and donors and won a contest that yielded $100 for the needs of the com-clean, paint and build shelves end of town. The women of the Tuesday Club went to work to help pass a bond for the swimming pool.

Club members went to work to put together a community program to raise funds to furnish the new community building that was being built. It had musical numbers, takeoffs of "Hee Haw", and dancing choruses of the business and professional men, school children and many others. The performance netted $1,000.

In the 1980's, the club started having a booth at the yearly Market Square Day and also established "story hour" at the library. Club members helped out dutifully during the flood of 1984, gleaning the comment from Red Cross, "We wish we had helpers like you to help us in every disaster."

One hundred years have passed since its inception, but the heart of the ladies has remained the same. Tuesday Club remains 20 members strong, but a few things have changed. The name has been shortened, the time of meeting has changed and the members can now attend meetings in slacks without hats. What hasn't changed is their quest for knowledge, their desire to help and the loyalty and friendship of their members.

Health experts say up to 80 percent of strokes are preventable

May is American Stroke Month

strokes are preventable, state health officials say.

Stroke is Missouri's third leading cause of death and the number one cause of disability in adults. High blood pressure is the leading risk factor for stroke

"If you have high blood pressure, take the necessary steps to get it under control," said Margaret Donnelly, director of the Missouri Department of Health and Senior Services. "High blood pressure is easily detected and can usually be controlled by making changes to your lifestyle."

May is American Stroke Month and state health officials are urging Missourians to log on to their computers and use the High Blood Pressure Risk Calculator to learn about their risk for stroke.

"Using the calculator is a good step in determining your risk and how to decrease your chances of having a stroke," said Donnelly. "It is based on an individual's own data and offers tips to reduce risks for developing many health problems."

The calculator uses height, weight, blood pressure and other factors to determine the user's stroke risk. The calculator can be found at www.heart.

Stroke deaths continue to stroke and seeking immediate rise, even though 80 percent of medical care if you experience those symptoms are crucial to preventing death or permanent disability.

"Time is critical. Treating stroke as soon as possible greatly reduces the risk of permanent damage," Donnelly said. "With stroke, time lost is brain lost."

A stroke occurs when a blood clot blocks an artery or a blood vessel breaks, interrupting blood flow to an area of the brain. When either of these things happens, brain cells begin to die.

The impact of a stroke can range from mild to severe and can affect a person's speech, movement and memory. In 2008, Missouri reported 3,252 deaths from stroke, up nearly 1 percent from the 3,226 strokerelated deaths in 2007.

Health experts offer an easyto-remember way to recognize and respond to stroke based on the word FAST:

- F-Face numbness or weakness, especially on one side
- A Arm numbness or weakness, especially on one side of
- S Speech slurred or difficulty speaking or understand-
- T Time to call 911, especially if there is also a sudden loss of vision, loss of balance with dizziness or a sudden, severe headache

Any of these symptoms may indicate stroke, but only a qualified health care provider can

A number of factors can put a person at greater risk for stroke. To reduce the risk of having a stroke:

- Follow your health-care provider's recommendations to keep blood pressure, cholesterol and diabetes under control.
- Take medications as prescribed.
- Don't smoke.
- Walk, exercise or find another way to be physically active for at least 30 minutes on most days.

• Eat a healthy diet, including plenty of fruits and vegetables, to maintain a healthy weight.

The High Blood Pressure Health Risk Calculator is a joint effort by the state health department and the American Heart Association. The calculator evaluates the potential for developing stroke, heart attack, heart failure and kidney disease. It also estimates how lifestyle changes can lower a person's chances of having a stroke and other health risks.

Assessment participants are encouraged to take the posttest survey to assist the health department in evaluating results. More information about stroke can be found at www. dhss.mo.gov/Stroke/ or www. cdc.gov/stroke/.
